“ Don't even know where to start. Doc Moo Moo was my body gaurd, my back up, the person who walked me home at night after our keggers at Burbank, Blue Tower and every house party we would hit up. Moose and I were close because we lived across the street frim each other. I used to run home at times when Moose was on his dirt bike he would chase e down the street even to the point of riding up my front stairs. The first time he ever showed real love was when I was in a car accident with Ralpe (FaFas) Dave.C, Danny Stephens, Joanne C and a few others we were racing and our car flipped over. When I was released from S.F General Moose was waiting on my stairs with an Excelsior street sign in his hands for me. We used to hang out and talk about the crazy thigs we did as young teens. We reunited 5 years ago and had become great friends all over again. For the past 3 1/2 years I seen him almost every day Moose became the very bedt of friends with my husband Ed do they would hang out and shoot pool tell all hours of the nite. Moose was at our house the nite before he passed away, he left around 11:30pm on Oct 24th my husband said he told Moose hed see him tomorrow not knowing that time wouldn't come for Moose. Moose touched many people that he never relized, he had a heart of gold but a mouth from the gutter when he was lossing at pool. There are no words to explain how much our Moo Moo will be missed. He was older then me but I used to call him my son. I love you Doc Moo Moo and I will enjoy the over 35 years of memories. 🥺❤️😭💞💋 Forever in my heart !!

“Moose,
We were like gas on a fire as a couple but ss thick as thieves as friends. I will miss sneaking you in and out of the house and I will no longer have a house sitting buddy. The neighborhood is so dull without you. And it hurts to know you won't be joining us in Nevada. I so looked forward to sitting on the porch with you at the end of each day. You of course with a joint in hand and me just gazing away. I guess plans have to change. I still and always will love you. I hope you are at piece my friend.

“ Hey, Mike,

Don't know if you're in FB yet or not, but below is something I posted the other day for Moose. I'm so, so sorry to hear about your sister. All my ❤️ to U @ this time. 🌹

I heard the news today, my "brother-in-law at odds, but always heart," Kevin "Moose" Shine passed away. We "inherited" each other awhile back while ago, & bit of us were stubbornly adverse to the deal. 😊 But, while Moose was maddenly frustrating, with the guile and/or wit to extract himself from chaotic situations that he had started (lol) ... which pissed me off to no end. He also was there, when "push push gone to shove" got out of hand, to step in & neutralize the situation. Yes, he was & is a true OG CP legend, & legends have their flaws. But, deep down - at the core of that sarcastic "who me! What??!" Shine was a stand up, no frills good guy just north of the decent side. 😊❤️😊. So, here's to you, Kevin (MOOSE!) Shine. 🍀 There's a Crocker Park Shamrock drifting it's way up to the Heavens for You. 🍀 From the ❤️ 🌹 Condolences to the Shine family, and the extended family and friends. God Speed.

My Friend Moo Moo,

We had some damn crazy rides in our immature days. From riding bikes to motor cycles to driving cars. Johnny C., Moo Moo and me rolled the city from Friday night to Saturday late nights.

So many great memories with him. He would never leave you sad. If it wasn't him capping on you or the person next to you. We alway left laughing. God Bless my brother peace be with you
